A boy of 14 — 15 according to the head of the community — died of his injuries on the spot. The regional head called on parents to explain to their children never to approach unknown objects. UNICEF reported two days earlier that at least 114 children had been killed in Ukraine from January to October 2026, the highest level in almost four years.

CONCLUSIÓN

A drone, a village, a Sunday morning. Two residents of Mazivka came across a Russian FPV drone; it exploded. A boy died of his injuries on the spot (O. Hryhorov; O. Harkavenko).

The danger stays after the strike. Drones that have not exploded remain a threat; the regional head warned that the risk is extremely high, especially in border communities, and urged parents to explain the rules to their children (O. Hryhorov, via Censor.net).

One of a rising number. UNICEF reported on 20 November that at least 114 children were killed in Ukraine from January to October 2026, using UN human rights monitoring data — the highest level in almost four years (UNICEF).
